RE:Docket No. 98N-1038

Irradiation in the Production, Processing and Handling of Food

I support the recommendation by the Center for Science in the Public Interest regarding labeling of irradiated foods.

Foods, and any packaged foods containing ingredients that have been irradiated, should be labeled clearly with WORDS and not just with the pretty symbol, so we consumers can know. And of course this labeling should be forever, and should not expire.

Pasteurization is NOT the same as irradiation, and is NOT a substitute for the word Irradiated.

Please place the comments received on the Internet, so the public can know who is participating in this process.

Sincerely,
